Recruitment Office
Fitbit Inc
San Francisco, CA 94101

Dear Recruitment Office,

My name is Daniel Garcia. I am a computer engineer at University of Massachusetts Dartmouth, and I am applying for the internship position of Back End Engineering. I found this opening on the linkedIN website as the position related my interests and experiences.

I have been interested in back end development engineering since I was a freshman in college and it is my curiosity and determination that has contributed to my experience. I have been a large fan of Fitbit for many years and to work for a company that has contributed to my overall health would be a great opportunity. As a result of working for General Dynamics Mission Systems for the past year, I have worked with security in the form of PKI and developing a means to operate in a certificate controlled environment. The PKI has been designed within a scrum team to be easily extendable and very secure. Also at General Dynamics and along with my own experience, I have developed in Bash and Powershell for the means of automated tasks and task scheduling. Often times these scripts must be done in a limited resource environment and therefore must be modular and must not consume too many resources. I have had a few years of experience in Java and a considerable amount more in C. I have also gained exposure to MySQL environments and using hibernate to provide object-relational mapping to the traditional database model at General Dynamics. I thoroughly enjoy working with a team and a challenging work environment where rapid learning must be done for development purposes. I love how Fitbit has helped thousands of people, including myself and my family, lose and maintain their weight as well as provide an API for programmers to have access to their data like never before.

I would like the opportunity to interview with you. I will contact you in the next two weeks to see if you require any additional information about my qualifications. I would be glad to provide any additional information as needed. Thank you for considering me for this position.

Kind Regards,

Daniel Garcia
